America's Cyber Future: VOLUMES I and II

(OSINF) America's growing dependence on cyberspace has created new vulnerabilities that are being exploited as fast as or faster than the nation can respond. Cyber attacks can cause economic damage, physical destruction, and even the loss of human life. They constitute a serious challenge to U.S. national security and demand greater attention from American leaders.

Despite productive efforts by the U.S. government and the private sector to strengthen cyber security, the increasing sophistication of cyber threats continues to outpace progress. To help U.S. policymakers address the growing danger of cyber insecurity, this two-volume report features accessible and insightful chapters on cyber security strategy, policy, and technology by some of the world's leading experts on international relations, national security, and information technology.

Serbien nimmt Ratko Mladic fest

(n-tv) Einer der meistgesuchten mutmaßlichen Kriegsverbrecher ist gefasst: "Im Namen der Republik Serbien teile ich mit, dass Ratko Mladic verhaftet wurde", erklärt Präsident Tadic. Damit wird einer der Hauptverantwortlichen für die Kriegsverbrechen auf dem Balkan festgenommen. Ihm wird unter anderem das Massaker von Srebrenica zur Last gelegt.

Der als Kriegsverbrecher gesuchte frühere bosnisch-serbische General Ratko Mladic ist nach mehr als 15 Jahren auf der Flucht in Serbien festgenommen worden. "Im Namen der Republik Serbien teile ich mit, dass Ratko Mladic verhaftet wurde", sagte Serbiens Präsident Boris Tadic am Donnerstag in einer eilig einberufenen Pressekonferenz in Belgrad. Jetzt könne Serbien "ein unrühmliches Kapitel seiner jüngeren Geschichte" abschließen. Mladic werde in Kürze an das UN-Kriegsverbrechertribunal in Den Haag überstellt.

Große Koalition für Anti-Terror-Gesetze

(Welt) Die SPD bietet der Union Hilfe an. Die FDP will Datenabfragen stoppen und militärischen Geheimdienst auflösen. Justizministerin Leutheusser und Innenminister Friedrich sind völlig zerstritten. Niedersachsens Ressortchef Schünemann (CDU) fordert Machtwort der Bundeskanzlerin.

Im Koalitionskonflikt um die Anti-Terror-Gesetze kann die Union mit Stimmen aus der SPD-Bundestagsfraktion rechnen. Wenn die Verlängerung der Gesetze im Parlament abgestimmt wird, wollen nach Informationen dieser Zeitung viele SPD-Abgeordnete zustimmen. "Die Mehrheit unserer 146 Abgeordneten wird einer befristeten Verlängerung der Anti-Terror-Gesetze zustimmen. Dafür sind bloß Veränderungen im Detail und eine eingehende Überprüfung nötig. Ich halte die Gesetze für maßvoll", sagte der rheinland-pfälzische SPD-Abgeordnete Michael Hartmann, der Obmann der Fraktion im Innenausschuss, der "Welt".

MAD - der geheimste aller Geheimdienste

(welt) Der Militärische Abschirmdienst beobachtet Spione und Extremisten. Doch nach Meinung vieler ist der Nachrichtendienst verzichtbar - seine Zukunft ist ungewiss.

Wie kann ich mich bewerben? Auf diese Frage erhalten Interessierte auf der Internetpräsenz des Militärischen Abschirmdienstes (MAD) umfassend Auskunft. Man müsse nur ein Kontaktformular ausfüllen, heißt es dort: „Wir setzen uns dann schnellstmöglich mit Ihnen in Verbindung.“

Doch Mächtgern-Agenten sollten sich keine allzu großen Hoffnungen machen. Denn die Zukunft des MAD ist höchst ungewiss: Im besten Fall steht dem Geheimdienst der Bundeswehr ein drastischer Personalabbau ins Haus. Im schlimmsten Fall wird er ganz abgeschafft.

Der MAD ist neben dem Bundesamt für Verfassungsschutz und dem Bundesnachrichtendienst der dritte deutsche Nachrichtendienst auf Bundesebene. Er steht im Ruf, die geheimste aller Geheimbehörden zu sein: Öffentlichkeitsarbeit ist ein Fremdwort, der amtierende Präsident Karl-Heinz Brüsselbach hat noch nie ein Interview gegeben.

Bin Laden Dead, Network Not

(OSINF) Bin Laden's supporters call for revenge and financial community on alert for terrorist financing.

In the early morning hours of May 2nd, American Seal Team Six, working in conjunction with the U.S. intelligence community, killed Usama bin Laden in a raid on his compound in the quiet Pakistani town of Abbottabad, 31 miles from the capital Islamabad.

"The death of bin Laden is indeed a strategic and symbolic victory for counterterrorism. That said, many of the pundits who now conflate bin Laden's death with the end of al-Qa'ida and terrorism in general are too hasty in their judgments."

The Bin Laden Operation: Tapping Human Intelligence

(STRATFOR) Since May 2, when U.S. special operations forces crossed the Afghan-Pakistani border and killed Osama bin Laden, international media have covered the raid from virtually every angle. The United States and Pakistan have also squared off over the U.S. violation of Pakistan's sovereign territory and Pakistan's possible complicity in hiding the al Qaeda leader. All this surface-level discussion, however, largely ignores almost 10 years of intelligence development in the hunt for bin Laden.

While the cross-border nighttime raid deep into Pakistan was a daring and daunting operation, the work to find the target – one person out of 180 million in a country full of insurgent groups and a population hostile to American activities on its soil – was a far greater challenge. For the other side, the challenge of hiding the world's most wanted man from the world's most funded intelligence apparatus created a clandestine shell game that probably involved current or former Pakistani intelligence officers as well as competing intelligence services. The details of this struggle will likely remain classified for decades.

(Abendblatt) Geheimdienst-Informationen sollen belegen, dass Saif Gaddafi noch lebt. Obama lehnt Bodentruppen ab: Das sei der Job der Rebellen.

In der libyschen Hauptstadt Tripolis hat es in der Nacht zum Donnerstag nach Regierungsangaben erneut mehrere Explosionen gegeben, berichtete der US-Nachrichtensender CNN. Ein libyscher Regierungssprecher sagte, Nato-Flugzeuge hätten eine Schule getroffen. Ein Nato-Sprecher sagte nach CNN-Angaben, er könne dies nicht bestätigen. Stunden zuvor hatte ein Sprecher des US-Verteidigungsministeriums erklärt, die USA hätten ihre Alliierten in den Operationen gegen das Regime des libyschen Machthaber Muammar al-Gaddafi mit Material versorgt. Darunter sei auch Munition gewesen, sagte Pentagon-Sprecher Dave Lapan.

Obama Aligns U.S. With Arab Protesters

(RFE) In a major speech that laid out his vision for the U.S. role in the increasingly tumultuous Middle East, President Barack Obama said the "shouts of human dignity are being heard across the region" and acknowledged that if the United States fails to respond to the "aspirations of ordinary people" it will deepen the belief that Washington's interests in the region are self-serving.

He also announced a significant shift in the U.S. position on the Israel-Palestinian conflict.

Speaking at the State Department, which he called "a fitting venue to mark a new chapter in American diplomacy," Obama for the first time since popular uprisings began sweeping Arab countries late last year addressed the collective yearning for democratic reforms across the region -- what he called "a longing for freedom."

Obama and the Arab Spring

(STRATFOR) U.S. President Barack Obama gave a speech last week on the Middle East. Presidents make many speeches. Some are meant to be taken casually, others are made to address an immediate crisis, and still others are intended to be a statement of broad American policy. As in any country, U.S. presidents follow rituals indicating which category their speeches fall into. Obama clearly intended his recent Middle East speech to fall into the last category, as reflecting a shift in strategy if not the declaration of a new doctrine.

While events in the region drove Obama's speech, politics also played a strong part, as with any presidential speech. Devising and implementing policy are the president's job. To do so, presidents must be able to lead -- and leading requires having public support. After the 2010 election, I said that presidents who lose control of one house of Congress in midterm elections turn to foreign policy because it is a place in which they retain the power to act. The U.S. presidential campaign season has begun, and the United States is engaged in wars that are not going well. Within this framework, Obama thus sought to make both a strategic and a political speech.

(DOD) CAPT. DARRYN JAMES (Director, Defense Press Operations): Good morning here, and good evening in Afghanistan. I'd like to welcome to the Pentagon Briefing Room for the first time British Army Major General Phil Jones, director of the Force Reintegration Cell at International Security Assistance Force headquarters.

General Jones assumed his current assignment in May of last year, and he's on an 18-month tour. This is his fourth tour in Afghanistan. Past tours include service as an infantry battalion commander in Kabul in 2002, as a director of plans for Combined Joint Task Force 180 in 2003, and as the military adviser to the United Nations Assistance Mission in Afghanistan in 2006-2007.

Intelligence agency cooperation still uncertain, say lawmakers

(thelandofthefree) U.S. Senators last week praised the intelligence community for its role in locating Osama bin Laden but questioned whether the cooperation exhibited in that case is illustrative of the level of integration across the community envisioned by intelligence reform legislation they helped co-author.

At the second in a series of hearings the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee is holding to examine implementation of national security reforms in the wake of 9-11 and where improvement is needed, the answer was mixed, according to Chairman Joe Lieberman (ID-CT) and Ranking Member Susan Collins (R-ME).

"The success in locating and killing bin Laden required intense and focused cooperation among key intelligence agencies," Lieberman said. "But when the target is not at this high level, the evidence about improved functioning of the Intelligence Community is mixed.

Cartels Using Arizona Mountaintops to Spy on Cops

(borderlandbeat) Hiking through rough Arizona desert terrain a few miles north of the Mexican border recently with a group of armed DEA agents, we were approached by a lone U.S. Border Patrol agent. He warned we should be careful up ahead, because two people believed to be spotters for a Mexican drug cartel had just been seen running down a ridge to elude U.S. authorities.

By now, agents told us, the men were probably hunkered down in a cave or crevice to wait out the patrol. But just to be safe, the DEA agents spread out to cover more ground as they moved forward again, watching closely for the suspected Mexican surveillance team likely sent by drug traffickers to spy on American law enforcement officials on their own soil.

National Intelligence Report on U.S. Manufacturing

(Todaro) The federal government reported that the U.S. trade deficit grew by 33 percent in 2010 to nearly half a trillion dollars. Most of the gap resulted from an imbalance in trade with China, which shipped $365 billion in goods to America but only bought $92 billion in U.S. goods. The resulting U.S. deficit of $273 billion in bilateral trade with Beijing reflects a persistent feature of the Sino-American relationship since China joined the World Trade Organization in 2001. Over the last ten years, China has mounted the biggest challenge to the U.S. manufacturing sector ever seen, threatening producers of steel, chemicals, glass, paper, drugs and any number of other items with prices they cannot match. Not coincidentally, the United States has lost an average of 50,000 manufacturing jobs every month during the same period.

Remarks by the President at the AIPAC Policy Conference 2011

The President speaks on America's unbreakable bond with Israel at the AIPAC Policy Conference 2011 at the Walter E. Washington Convention Center:

I said that the United States believes that negotiations should result in two states, with permanent Palestinian borders with Israel, Jordan, and Egypt, and permanent Israeli borders with Palestine. The borders of Israel and Palestine should be based on the 1967 lines with mutually agreed swaps -- (applause) -- so that secure and recognized borders are established for both states. The Palestinian people must have the right to govern themselves, and reach their potential, in a sovereign and contiguous state.

As for security, every state has the right to self-defense, and Israel must be able to defend itself -- by itself -- against any threat. (Applause.) Provisions must also be robust enough to prevent a resurgence of terrorism, to stop the infiltration of weapons, and to provide effective border security. (Applause.) And a full and phased withdrawal of Israeli military forces should be coordinated with the assumption of Palestinian security responsibility in a sovereign and non-militarized state. (Applause.) And the duration of this transition period must be agreed, and the effectiveness of security arrangements must be demonstrated. (Applause.)

Now, that is what I said. And it was my reference to the 1967 lines -- with mutually agreed swaps -- that received the lion's share of the attention, including just now. And since my position has been misrepresented several times, let me reaffirm what "1967 lines with mutually agreed swaps" means.

By definition, it means that the parties themselves -- Israelis and Palestinians -- will negotiate a border that is different than the one that existed on June 4, 1967.

An Intelligence Carrot(?)

(ctnews) If you were to envision what the detention center for America's worst enemies would look like, would family visitation be part of it?

The Pentagon is currently weighing whether or not to grant that privilege to the 172 terrorist detainees remaining at the Guantanamo Bay (Gitmo) Detention Facility. Meanwhile, Republican lawmakers in the US House of Representatives are drafting legislation to ban such visits. On its face, allowing family visits would seem to go against what the facility is designed to do ... and certainly present some security concerns. However, it would serve as a useful instrument for collecting intelligence to foil future terrorist attacks and degrade the capabilities of organized terror groups.

The "Carrot": The terrorist detainees at Gitmo are important assets to the US in the Global War on Terror. They know how the enemy operates, their patterns, trends and tactics, techniques and procedures. Allowing family visits would be a tool for interrogators to collect intelligence and glean important information about the terror groups that threaten US interests. Simply put, more tools available to intelligence collectors and detainee interrogators amount to better intelligence ... And better intelligence leads to better National Security.

Strong Military is Key to Long-term U.S. Success, Gates Says

(DoD) he ultimate guarantee against success of aggressors, dictators and terrorists in the 21st century is the size, strength and global reach of the United States military, Defense Secretary Robert M. Gates said today.

"Beyond the current wars, our military credibility, commitment and presence are required to sustain alliances, to protect trade routes and energy supplies, and to deter would-be adversaries from making the kind of miscalculations that so often lead to war," Gates said, speaking at a graduation commencement ceremony at the University of Notre Dame in Indiana.

Gates acknowledged that defense cuts will have to be made in light of the nation's steep fiscal imbalances and mounting debt, and that Washington cannot put off dealing with the crisis.

Gates Calls for Continued US Iraq Role

(VOA) U.S. Defense Secretary Robert Gates said Tuesday that the United States should maintain a troop presence in Iraq after the scheduled full withdrawal at the end of this year, in part, to balance Iran's influence in the region.

Secretary Gates said Iraqi military officers know they will continue to need U.S. help after the end of the year, particularly on air defense, intelligence gathering and analysis, and logistics. The problem, he said, is that the U.S. military presence is not popular in Iraq, making it difficult for the country's political leaders to ask for it to continue. "From the standpoint of Iraq's future, but also our role in the region, I hope they figure out a way to ask. And I think that the United States will be willing to say, 'Yes,' when that time comes," he said.

US Widens Sanctions on Iran Amid Nuclear Impasse

(VOA) The United States has announced sanctions against seven foreign entities, including Venezuela's state oil company, for engaging in trade with Iran in violation of U.S. law. It is part of an effort to prompt Iran to return to big-power talks over its nuclear program.

The Obama administration is stepping up its sanctions against foreign companies aiding Iran's energy sector following a disappointing Iranian response to the latest big-power offer to return to nuclear talks.

A State Department announcement said seven companies, among them the Venezuelan state oil company Petroleos de Venezuela, will face varying penalties for helping deliver refined oil products to Iran.

Defense Employees Told To Report Suspicious Activities

(FAS) A new counterintelligence directive requires all Department of Defense personnel to report a wide range of suspicious activities and behavior to counterintelligence officials. The directive effectively deputizes millions of military and civilian employees of the Department as counterintelligence agents or informants. If they do not report any of the specified activities, they themselves could be subject to punitive action.

"Potential FIE [Foreign Intelligence Entity] threats to the DoD, its personnel, information, materiel, facilities, and activities, or to U.S. national security shall be reported by DoD personnel," the new directive states.

"DoD personnel who fail to report information as required... may be subject to judicial or administrative action, or both, pursuant to applicable law and regulation," it says. See DoD Directive 5240.06, "Counterintelligence Awareness and Reporting," May 17, 2011.

(WSJ) Three years after launching a probe to determine whether the 2008 oil-market frenzy was fueled by excessive speculation, the U.S. alleged that two traders and their firms operated an international plot to manipulate prices.

In a federal-court lawsuit filed Tuesday, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission accused the traders of running a simple, but effective, scheme in early 2008 that reaped more than $50 million.

In one of the biggest cases ever pursued by the CFTC in the energy markets, the agency is seeking triple damages and disgorgement of gains, according to the complaint, which could amount to up to $200 million.

The ships were hit during a raid on Thursday night on Tripoli and Al Khums. One warship remained afloat but listing at its mooring between two merchant tankers. Fire and smoke were visible from miles away.

It claimed that it also arrested 42 others in connection to the alleged spy network, the website of Iran's state-owned Press TV website reported.

According to a statement by the Intelligence Ministry published on the website of the semi-official Mehr news agency (link in Persian), the network was run by CIA agents via U.S. embassies in the United Arab Emirates, Turkey and Malaysia.

"Due to the massive intelligence and counterintelligence work by Iranian intelligence agents, a complex espionage and sabotage network linked to America's spy organization was uncovered and dismantled," said a statement from the Intelligence Ministry read on state TV.

"CIA killer walks free"

(The News) In a day full of fast paced developments and a dramatic climax, an additional district and sessions judge (ASJ) acquitted CIA contractor Raymond Davis in a double murder case and ordered his immediate release after the legal heirs of the two victims accepted blood money of Rs200 million under the Qisas and Diyat law and pardoned the killer. The court also showed exceptional haste in giving a soft verdict on the illegal weapons case and paving the way for Davis' immediate release and handover to the US authorities. According to reports, the freed CIA contractor was whisked away to Kabul within hours in a special US government aircraft, which had been parked at the Lahore Airport since Tuesday evening.

Mullah Omar - das afghanische Phantom

(dw-world) Über den afghanischen Geheimdienst wurde verbreitet, dass nach Osama bin Laden auch Mullah Omar in Pakistan getötet worden sei. Das verrät mehr über das afghanisch-pakistanische Verhältnis als über den Taliban-Führer.

Mullah Mohammed Omar ist ein Mann ohne Gesicht und seit fast zehn Jahren abgetaucht. Selbst bei den wenigen Fotos, die es von ihm gibt, ist nicht mit letzter Sicherheit geklärt, ob sie wirklich sein Gesicht zeigen. Als verbrieft gilt, dass ihm ein Auge fehlt. Er verlor es während des afghanischen Freiheitskampfes gegen die sowjetische Besatzung in den 1980er Jahren. Als vermutetes Geburtsjahr des weitgehend Unbekannten wird oft 1959 genannt.

Pakistan Provokes Deep Divisions In Washington

(RFE) More than three weeks after the killing of Al-Qaeda leader Osama bin Laden by United States commandos, U.S. policymakers, military leaders, and legislators remain deeply divided when it comes to defining relations with Pakistan.

Recent differences of opinion within the political elite in Washington are raising serious questions about the future of U.S. policy toward the south-Asian country.

"I have real difficulty explaining to people back home in Idaho what we're doing spending billions of dollars in Pakistan, particularly on civilian matters, when they don't like us," said Senator James Risch (Republican, Idaho), at a Senate's Foreign Relations Committee hearing on May 17.

Pakistani PM for defense installations security review

(Irna) Pakistani Prime Minister Syed Yusuf Raza Gilani Tuesday issued instructions to upgrade the security of all the defense installations two days after Taliban attacked a naval air force base in Karachi and killed at least 10 navy personnel.

The Pakistan Taliban immediately claimed responsibility for Sunday's raid and said it was aimed to avenge Osama Bin Laden's killing by U.S. Special Forces in the Pakistani town of Abbottabad on May 2. Interior Minister Rahman Malik said 15 other troops were injured in gunfight.

Pakistani forces ended the 17-hour siege of the PNS base Mehran on Monday and killed the group of six Taliban militants, who were equipped with rockets, hand grenades and automatic guns.

The attack, second after the 2009 similar attack on the army's headquarters in the garrison city of Rawalpindi by Taliban militants, raised fears about the ability of the militants to strike sensitive installations.

'There is a need to upgrade the security measures keeping in view the intentions of terrorists,' Prime Minister Gilani said during his visit to PNS base Mehran on Tuesday.

Japan's TEPCO admits further reactor meltdowns

(theage) The operator of Japan's tsunami-hit Fukushima nuclear power plant on Tuesday said it believed fuel had partially melted inside three reactors, as long suspected by experts.

Tokyo Electric Power Company (TEPCO) said new readings on water gauges indicated that the fuel had dropped to the bottom of the containment vessels of units two and three, matching its earlier assessment of unit one.

In all three reactors, relatively low temperatures indicated that the fuel was now mostly covered by water that has been pumped into the vessels, meaning there was no immediate threat of an uncontrolled full meltdown.

US carried out illegal terror hunt in Sweden

(Swedishwire) US intelligence agents have staked out suspected "terrorists" in Sweden, without the authorisation of the government there, the online edition of a Swedish daily reported Sunday.

Sweden's intelligence service Säpo discovered in 2009 that two Americans were conducting illegal, under-cover investigations in Sweden, the Svenska Dagbladet daily reported.

The two men were discovered when Säpo noticed them tracking people who it was also investigating for suspected ties to terrorist groups, the paper said, quoting several unnamed sources close to Saepo.

Washington had not informed Swedish authorities of the agents' activities in the country, and soon after their activities were discovered, the two US citizens left the country, the paper added.

UK yet to decide on sending attack helicopters to Libya

(Irna) The UK government had yet to decide whether to deploy the Apache attack helicopters in Libya, Armed Forces Minister Nick Harvey insisted Tuesday, but refused to rule out what would be a significant escalation of Nato's intervention.

'My understanding is that the French have indeed taken a decision to deploy their attack helicopters in Libya,' Harvey told parliament.

'I state again for the avoidance of all doubt: no such decision has been taken by the United Kingdom. It is an option we are considering and there is absolutely no sense in which it is true to say that we have kept Parliament in the dark about a decision,' he said after repeated questioning.

Apaches have already been used in counter-insurgency operations in Afghanistan to manoeuvre and attack small targets in relatively built-up areas.

Last week, Foreign Secretary William Hague expressed support for Britain's army chief General Sir David Richards in controversially calling to step up the bombing campaign in Libya to include country's infrastructure but denied it was outside the UN mandate.

(PNN) Kränze für die Opfer des Stalinismus in der Leistikowstraße.
Zeitzeuge Peter Seele begeisterte Schulklasse

Nauener Vorstadt - Eine berührende Szene: Am letzten Tag der Werkstattwoche haben Opferverbände im Beisein von Schülern des Evangelischen Gymnasiums Hermannswerder in der Gedenkstätte Leistikowstraße Kränze zur Erinnerung an die Opfer des Stalinismus niedergelegt. Mit dabei war auch Peter Seele, Jahrgang 1928, der am 9. Oktober 1951 vom russischen Geheimdienst verhaftet worden war. Seine Frau fragte damals noch, wie lange es dauern würde, und die NKWD-Leute sagten, „eine halbe bis dreiviertel Stunde“, wie Seele den Schülern gestern berichtete. Doch bis zu seiner Rückkehr sollten Jahre vergehen: Wegen angeblicher Spionage zu 25 Jahren Arbeitslager verurteilt, kam er erst zwei Tage vor Weihnachten des Jahres 1955 aus dem berüchtigten nordrussischen Gulag Workuta nach Potsdam zurück.

60 Jahre hessischer Verfassungsschutz - Islamisten größte Bedrohung

(FNP) Die Stabilität der deutschen Demokratie ist nicht selbstverständlich. 60 Jahre lang hat der hessische Verfassungsschutz Extremisten aller Art beobachtet. In den vergangenen Jahren wurde die Bedrohung durch islamistische Gruppen immer stärker.

Milli Görus, Blood&Honour, Salafistische Gruppe oder das Marxistische Forum: Die Liste der Staatsfeinde in Hessen ist in den vergangenen Jahren immer länger geworden.

Wenn am kommenden Freitag (27. Mai) der hessische Verfassungsschutz fast zwei Monate zu früh den 60. Jahrestag seiner Gründung feiert, zweifelt kaum jemand an der Berechtigung des Geheimdienst-Amtes in Wiesbaden. Es steht nach Auffassung der meisten Parlamentarier des Landtags für eine erfolgreiche wehrhafte Demokratie, die über ihre Feinde Bescheid wissen muss.

Einzige Ausnahme ist die Linke, die in Hessen stärker beobachtet wird als zum Beispiel in den östlichen Bundesländern. «Geheimdienst und Demokratie bleiben ein Widerspruch», hat der Linken-Abgeordnete Hermann Schaus kürzlich formuliert und seinerseits eine schärfere Kontrolle der Verfassungsschützer verlangt. Die anderen Parteien haben sich hingegen klar zum Verfassungsschutz bekannt und ihn als «unverzichtbar» bezeichnet.

(FAZ) Von einfach bis nobel - das Townhouse ist in Berlin in Mode und in jeder Preisklasse zu haben. Der Haustyp wird als Ausdruck der „neuen Lust auf Stadt“ gefeiert. Dabei rückt nur das Reihenhauses ins Zentrum.

Der Geheimdienst kommt erst noch, aber seine Nachbarn sind schon da. Gleich neben der Baustelle für den Bundesnachrichtendienst an der Chausseestraße in Berlin-Mitte liegt eine Häuserreihe im Grünen. Wie eine backsteinerne Perlenschnur sieht sie aus, hübsch uniform: elf gleiche Treppenaufgänge, elf graublau gestrichelte Haustüren und elf Miniaturgärten auf der Rückseite.

Kriminalist auf der Spur unserer Verhaltensmuster

(LN) Wie verhalten sich Menschen in Extremsituationen? Was verraten unterbewusst ablaufende Verhaltensmuster über uns? Solchen Fragen ist der Kriminalist Leo Martin auf der Spur. „Geheimwaffen der Kommunikation – Sanfte Strategien mit durchschlagender Wirkung“ ist der Titel seines Vortrags, den er am kommenden Donnerstag im Rahmen der LN-Akademie in Lübeck hält.

Sein Job beim Geheimdienst sei es gewesen, V-Leute anzuwerben und Informationen aus Menschen heraus zu bekommen, die niemand freiwillig verraten würde, sagt er. „Wesentlich sind absolute Verbindlichkeit und Verlässlichkeit. Ihr Gegenüber muss wissen, wofür Sie stehen, und wofür nicht, was er von Ihnen erwarten kann und was nicht: Sie geben Versprechen ab und halten sie ein“, rät Leo Martin.

200 Tage pro Jahr ist er auf Reisen zu Vorträgen und um sein Buch „Ich krieg Dich – Menschen für sich gewinnen. Ein Ex-Agent verrät die besten Strategien“ (Ariston-Verlag) vorzustellen. Seine Zuhörer in Lübeck dürfen gespannt sein – auch auf die Frage-und-Antwort-Runde nach dem Vortrag.

Justizministerin will Geheimdienst abschaffen

(FR) Sabine Leutheusser-Schnarrenberger fordert die Auflösung des militärischen Geheimdienstes MAD – die bisher drei Nachrichtendienste führten zu Doppelstrukturen, Intransparenz und möglicherweise sogar zu doppelten Grundrechtseingriffen.

„Die Verteilung der nachrichtendienstlichen Tätigkeit des Bundes auf drei verschiedene Dienste führt zu überflüssigen Doppelstrukturen, darauf beruhender Intransparenz und zu der Gefahr doppelter Grundrechtseingriffe“, kritisiert die FDP-Politikerin in ihrer Stellungnahme zur Bewertung der Anti-Terror-Gesetze, die Reuters am Mittwoch vorlag. Zugleich lehnt sie bei sechs von zehn zentralen Auskunftsbefugnissen die von der Union geforderte Verlängerung strikt ab. Bei den übrigen vier will sie die Hürden erhöhen.

(freiepresse) Das Interesse an den Stasi-Unterlagen der ehemaligen DDR lässt nicht nach. Allein im vergangenen Jahr habe es knapp 90.000 Anträge auf Akteneinsicht gegeben, sagt der Bundesbeauftragte. In Sachsen sind es 19.500 gewesen. "Die Nachfrage ist ungebrochen", betont Jahn, der wegen einer am Fahrrad befestigten Solidarnosz-Fahne in der DDR selbst ins Gefängnis musste.

Zunehmend würden sich auch Westdeutsche für die Stasiunterlagen interessieren. Allein in der Kleinstadt Kaarst bei Düsseldorf hätten beispielsweise in den vergangenen Jahren rund 300 Frauen und Männer einen Antrag auf Akteneinsicht gestellt. Für solche Anfrage sei die Außenstelle in Leipzig besonders wichtig, weil nur dort die Akten der Auslandsspionage des MfS, der Hauptabteilung Aufklärung, fast vollständig erhalten geblieben seien.

Neue Erkenntnisse erwartet Jahn in den nächsten Jahren vor allem aus der Erschließung der von der Staatssicherheit in den letzten Wochen und Monaten der DDR per Hand zerrissenen Akten. Das Forschungsprogramm zur Erstellung einer Software, die die Schnipsel wieder zusammenfügen soll, laufe. Noch in diesem Jahr sollen die ersten digital rekonstruierten Daten übergeben werden.

(washingtonexaminer) A judge issued an arrest order Tuesday for the former head of Colombia's secret police over her alleged involvement in a domestic spying scandal.

The order is aimed at former domestic intelligence chief Maria del Pilar Hurtado. Hurtado, who says she is innocent, has been living in exile in Panama since November 2010 and that country has said it will maintain her asylum.

The DAS security agency led by Hurtado spied on judges, journalists and political opponents of Colombian President Alvaro Uribe, who left office last August. At least 20 former DAS officials have been jailed in the scandal.

Government Finds Uses for Soc. Net. Sites Beyond Investigations

(EFF) Recent news has made it abundantly clear that the government uses the Internet and social networking sites as tools for investigation. But what's not clear, and what the government has been reluctant to reveal, is how this information has been collected and utilized. To get answers, EFF, with help from Berkeley Law's Samuelson Clinic, made a series of Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) requests asking various law enforcement agencies to disclose documents detailing their use of social networking sites in their investigations. When the government refused to comply with these requests, we went to court to compel them to respond. The latest disclosures from this litigation reveal just some of the ways the government is obtaining and using information from the Internet.

Arkadi Wolosch - Der Erfinder des Russen-Google

(ftd) Das Moskauer Mathegenie gründete 1997 die beliebteste Suchmaschine des Landes. Die Suchmaschine Yandex legte an der Nasdaq den größten Börsengang der Internetbranche seit sieben Jahren hin.

Yandex ist mittlerweile die meistbesuchte Website im Runet, wie das Internet in Russland genannt wird. Täglich besuchen neun Millionen Menschen die Seite. Bei den Suchmaschinen hält Yandex einen Marktanteil von mehr als 60 Prozent. Dank der Regionalisierung des Angebots haben die Russen Google, das in Russland rund 20 Prozent Marktanteil hält, im eigenen Markt längst abgehängt.

Nicht schaden dürfte dabei, dass Wolosch stets mit der Staatsmacht kooperiert hat. 2009 übernahm die staatliche Sparkasse Sberbank für einen symbolischen Euro eine goldene Aktie und erhielt damit das Vetorecht im Fall des Verkaufs von 25 Prozent der Aktien. Als kurz vor dem Börsengang bekannt wurde, dass Yandex Benutzerdaten an den russischen Geheimdienst FSB weitergegeben hatte, hagelte es Kritik. Betroffen waren Nutzer, die dem Antikorruptionsaktivisten und Blogger Alexej Nawalny Spenden überweisen wollten.

Remote File Inclusion: Die unsichtbare Gefahr

aus dem Hacker-Untergrund. Als Teil des Application Defense Centers (ADC) untersucht die HII aktuelle Angriffsmethoden, neue Entwicklungen bei der Sicherheit von Web-Applikationen sowie die dahinter liegenden Geschäftsmodelle der Hacker. Der aktuelle Report beschäftigt sich mit einer Angriffsmethode, die viele verbreitete Sicherheitsmaßnahmen unterläuft: Remote File Inclusion (RFI).

Hacker-Angriffe wie SQL-Injection und Cross-Site Scripting (XSS) genießen bei Sicherheitsverantwortlichen in Unternehmen mittlerweile eine traurige Berühmtheit. Durch ihren häufigen Einsatz sind Schutzmechanismen oder zumindest Warnsysteme gegen solche Angriffe mittlerweile sehr verbreitet, was sie zwar nicht entschärft, aber immerhin kontrollierbarer macht. Weniger bekannt ist eine andere Angriffstechnik, die genauso viel Schaden anrichten kann, dabei aber meist die klassischen Sicherheitsmaßnahmen unterläuft: Remote File Inclusion (RFI).

Bei diesem Angriff werden Schwachstellen in Web-Applikationen ausgenutzt, um Anwendungen beim Zugriff auf Dateien, die auf unterschiedlichen Servern gespeichert sind, umzuleiten. Die meisten Angriffe zielen dabei auf die Skriptsprache PHP. Da PHP die Eingaben bei solchen Zugriffen nicht ordentlich prüft, lassen sich die verwendeten Links auf andere Webseiten umleiten - die sich unter der Kontrolle des Hackers befinden.

Project Acoustic Kitty: how the CIA failed at using cats as spies

-----

(dvice) Cats are perfect spies. They're small, they're stealthy, and they excel at seducing humans, who can't help but pet them while blathering on about state secrets. This is exactly why the CIA decided to implant listening devices into cats and train them to go where they were told. This is no joke, it's Project Acoustic Kitty.

The CIA chose a grey and white adult female cat to be its first agent under Project Acoustic Kitty. Rigging the cat to record audio was the easy part of the program: a ¼ inch transmitter was embedded in its skull, with a microphone hidden in its ear canal. The antenna ran all the way along the cat's back to its tail, underneath the fur. Short battery life meant that the cat couldn't spend too long on any one mission, but as it turned out, that was one of the least limiting factors of the whole business.

Apparently, her hunger issues were somehow "addressed with another operation," and her training was intensified until the CIA was reasonably confident (or however confident they could possibly be) that the cat was capable of actually going where she was told. All told, the program had taken about $20 million and five years, but Acoustic Kitty was finally ready for deployment.

The first mission took place in a park near the Soviet embassy, where the cat was tasked with eavesdropping on two men. A CIA reconnaissance van across the street released the operative, who took a few steps towards her foes and was immediately run over by a taxi.

(TLZ) "Der Mann, der Hunde liebte": Der Kubaner Leonardo Padura schreibt einen Roman über Leo Trotzki und seinen Mörder. Kubas international bekanntester Schriftsteller Leonardo Padura hat das Genre gewechselt. Nach seinen Krimis ("Havanna-Quartett"), in denen das Leben immer eine weit wichtigere Rolle spielte als der Mord, wendet er sich in "Der Mann, der Hunde liebte" dem historischen Roman zu.

Bei jenem Hunde liebenden Mann handelt es sich um Ramón Mercader, einen katalanischen Spanier, der am 20. August 1940 in Coyoacán, einem Vorort von Mexiko-Stadt, den russischen Revolutionär und Stalin-Widersacher Leo Trotzki mit einem Eispickel tötete. Mercader, der als Kommunist während des Spanischen Bürgerkrieges vom sowjetischen Geheimdienst angeworben worden war, verbrachte seine letzten Lebensjahre bis 1978 unerkannt auf Kuba.

(Kleine Zeitung) Stefan Meining deckt auf, wie aus alten Waffenbruderschaften zwischen antisowjetischen Muslimen und Nazis nach dem Zweiten Weltkrieg in München die erste Keimzelle des politischen Islam im Westen entstand. Bis heute laufen in einer Münchner Moschee die Fäden des westlichen Islamismus zusammen. Eine unglaubliche Geschichte: Ausgediente NS-Bürokraten, Vertriebenenfunktionäre, Geheimdienstler und andere Kalte Krieger pöppeln in den fünfziger Jahren in München die Keimzelle des politischen Islam im Westen auf. Muslime, die im Dienst der Wehrmacht und der SS im Zweiten Weltkrieg gegen die Sowjetunion gekämpft haben, sollen nun für Unruhe in den islamischen sorgen. Aber die Münchner Muslime haben mit dem Kalten Krieg nichts im Sinn: Sie werden zur wichtigsten Filiale von Anhängern der Muslimbruderschaften im Westen und zur Schaltzentrale eines globalen Netzwerkes. Seit Jahrzehnten stehen immer wieder Personen aus diesem Netzwerk unter Terrorverdacht - bis hin zu den Anschlägen vom 11. September. In der islamischen Welt weiß man längst, welche Bedeutung die Moschee in München hat.

Wie ein Junge dem Holocaust entkam

(BZ) Kurt Maier ist immer noch Kippenheimer, obwohl er seit 1941 in den USA lebt. Um den Ausführungen des Zeitzeugen zu lauschen, sind am Donnerstagabend etwa 60 Interessierte, Freunde und Bekannte in die ehemalige Synagoge gekommen. Dort hat Maier sein neues Buch mit dem Titel "Unerwünscht. Kindheits- und Jugenderinnerungen eines jüdischen Kippenheimers" vorgestellt.

"Wir hatten unglaubliches Glück", erinnert sich Maier. "Wir waren eine der wenigen Familien, die komplett ausreisen durften." Verwandte in New York hatten für sie gebürgt, dass sie dem amerikanischen Staat nicht zur Last fallen würden. Bald aber hatten es seine Eltern geschafft, sich selbst zu finanzieren, was als Fleischlieferant und Arbeiterin in einer Lederfabrik nicht einfach gewesen sei.

Als Kind hatte er in der neuen Heimat unerwartete Schwierigkeiten. "In Kippenheim bin ich nie von meinen Mitschülern belästigt worden, aber in New York wurde ich wegen meiner auffälligen Knickebockerhose gehänselt und geschlagen, und als die Japaner Pearl Harbour angegriffen hatten, und die USA von da an im Krieg gegen Deutschland standen, als Nazi-Spion beschimpft."

Spy vs. Spy: Richard Nixon and Jack Anderson

(thefastertimes) Richard Nixon never saw himself as anything other than a hero, even in his least heroic moments, and in his self-styled role as hero, he had many villains, more villains than any superhero ever had: some of them easily defeated (George McGovern); some of them defeated only with great, and inexplicable, difficulty (Hubert Humphrey); others self-defeating (Ted Kennedy, George Romney); others kept close as ostensible friends, to better avoid one's own defeat (J. Edgar Hoover, Dwight Eisenhower); and some defeated by others, and in the most total way possible (Jack and Bobby Kennedy).

Doku-Film über "The Real Inglorious Bastards"

(Tirol ORF) Für einen Dokumentarfilm hat das kanadische Fernsehen Station in Tirol gemacht. Beleuchtet wird die Geschichte jüdischer Anti-Nazi-Kämpfer, die am Ende des 2. Weltkriegs zur unblutigen Übernahme Innsbrucks durch die Amerikaner führte.

Angeführt von der Doku-Regisseurin Min Sook Lee war die kanadische Filmcrew von "History Television" diese Woche in Oberperfuß (Bezirk Innsbruck-Land) und besuchte mit dem amerikanischen Zeitzeugen Fred Mayer Originalschauplätze seines damaligen Einsatzes als Agent.

Der Traum lebt mein Leben zu Ende

(film-dienst) Sie gilt als eine der profiliertesten deutschsprachigen Lyrikerinnen des 20. Jahrhunderts. Doch obwohl sie praktisch seit ihrer Jugend Gedichte schrieb, wurde Rose Ausländer erst in ihren letzten Lebensjahrzehnten die gebührende literarische Anerkennung zuteil. 1901 in der damals österreichischen Stadt Czernowitz geboren, floh sie mit ihren Eltern während des Ersten Weltkriegs erst nach Budapest und später nach Wien, kehrte vorübergehend in ihre Heimatstadt zurück und wanderte 1921 in die USA aus. 1939 folgte die Rückkehr ins inzwischen sowjetische Czernowitz, wo sie zunächst als vermeintliche US-Spionin vom Geheimdienst NKWD verhaftet wurde und nach dem Überfall der Wehrmacht als Jüdin im Ghetto der Stadt dem Holocaust nur knapp entkam. Anschließend zog es Rose Ausländer wieder nach New York, bis sie 1965 schließlich Düsseldorf zur letzten Station ihres bewegten Lebens erkor, das 1988 endete.

Katharina Schubert zeichnet in ihrem Dokumentarfilm die Stationen dieser bemerkenswerten Dichter-Biografie mehr oder minder chronologisch nach.

Jason Statham will neuer James Bond werden

(Viply) Nachdem die „James Bond“-Reihe zumindest finanziell gerettet ist, stellt sich nun erneut die Frage der Fragen: Wer wird den beliebten britischen Spion spielen? Dass Daniel Craig für die 23. Leinwandadaption zum dritten Mal ins Dinnerjackett schlüpfen wird, ist nämlich nicht mehr so ganz klar.

Studio-Insider wissen, dass man sich, wie sooft in Hollywood, mal wieder komplett neu erfinden möchte und deswegen auch einen „frischen“ Hauptdarsteller in Erwägung zieht. Eine Stellenausschreibung, die bereits in der Vergangenheit für viel Furore gesorgt hat. Jeder hat eine fest gefertigte Meinung, wie genau James Bond zu sein hat.

Eines ist jedoch immer fest vorgegeben. Der Bond-Schauspieler muss Brite sein! Jetzt meldet sich einer, der wirklich gut passen könnte. Schauspieler Jason Statham hat schon immer davon geträumt, eines Tages den wohl berühmtesten Spion der Welt zu spielen: „Na klar. Er hat all diese tollen Männer-Spielzeuge, legt die schönsten Frauen flach und am Ende des Tages rettet er noch die Welt. Das ist doch nun wirklich der Traum eines jeden Mannes, eine so coole Sau zu spielen.“

"Wer ist Hanna?": Rache-Engel aus dem Eis

(Stern) Profikiller sind keine Lichtgestalten. Ihren Job machen sie selten im hellen Sonnenschein. So verrichten auch die Jugendliche Hanna und ihr Vater, der ehemalige CIA-Agent Erik, zwischen düsteren Bunkern und Industrieanlagen ihr Werk. Für ihre Rolle in dem Thriller von Joe Wright verwandelte sich Jungstar Saoirse Ronan in eine muskulöse Kampfmaschine.

U-Bahn-Stationen, Tunnel, Schächte, Containerlandschaften: Ihre harte, feindliche Umwelt nehmen Hanna und ihr Vater oft so wahr, als hätten sie Klangverstärker in den Ohren und empfindliche Objektive in den Augen. Dabei lenken Kamera und Ton den Fokus der Zuschauer im Breitwandformat Cinemascope über die Leinwand, als würden diese den Alptraumtrip mit den Sinnen der Charaktere erleben.

Japan, sein Kaiser und die Armee - Ein Land und seine Gesellschaft nach dem Zweiten Weltkrieg

Dokumentarfilm

Dauer: 91 min (b)

Beschreibung: Japan kämpft in diesen Tagen mit den Folgen einer katastrophalen Natur- und Nuklearkatastrophe. Japan stieg nach der totalen und in Hiroshima und Nagasaki nuklearen Zerstörung aus den Ruinen des Zweiten Weltkriegs zu einer der führenden Weltwirtschaftsmächte auf. Politisch und ökonomisch befand sich das Land im Schlepptau Amerikas, eingebettet in die Frontenideologie des Kalten Krieges. Zum einen musste Japan die Frage der eigenen Souveränität beantworten, zum anderen seine Position in der Weltpolitik neu bestimmen. Der Dokumentarfilm untersucht die Rolle der drei wichtigsten Faktoren: Verfassung, Kaiser und Armee.

ZDFzoom: Stresstest für die Atomkraft - Fukushima und die Folgen

Dauer: 30 min (c)

Beschreibung: Für die ZDFzoom-Dokumentation haben ZDF-Reporter das Atomkraftland Deutschland nach der Reaktorkatastrophe bereist und gefragt, wie nachhaltig Fukushima die Zukunft der Kernenergie in Deutschland beeinflusst. Dafür sprachen sie mit denjenigen, die darüber entscheiden, und denen, die mit dieser Entscheidung werden leben müssen. In dem Film geht es nicht nur um die unmittelbaren Konsequenzen aus Japan, ob etwa verseuchte Güter oder Lebensmittel importiert werden können. Derzeit gravierender scheinen die indirekten Folgen. Die Politik hat ein Moratorium für die älteren Kernkraftwerke verhängt. Stresstests sollen nun die Sicherheit der Kernkraftwerke neu überprüfen. Stehen weitere Kernkraftwerke in Deutschland vor dem Aus? Und wie versuchen die Befürworter der Kernenergie, der Dynamik des immer schnelleren Ausstiegs zu begegnen?
