Angela Merkel's mania for austerity is destroying Europe

(newstatesman) The German Chancellor is terminating growth and pushing us towards a new Depression.

Which world leader poses the biggest threat to global order and prosperity? The Iranian president, Mahmoud Ahmadinejad? Wrong. Israel's prime minister, Binyamin Netanyahu? Nope. North Korea's Kim Jong-un? Wrong again.

The answer is a mild-mannered opera fan and former chemist who has been in office for seven years. Yes, step forward, Chancellor Angela Merkel of Germany, whose solution to Europe's financial crisis - or lack thereof - has brought the continent, and perhaps the world, to the edge of a second Great Depression. "World Bank warns that euro collapse could spark global crisis", read the headline on the front of the Observer on 17 June.

Die Verteidigung beim Prozess gegen den Massenmörder Anders Behring Breivik plädiert auf Freispruch wegen "Notwehr". Im Falle einer Verurteilung solle Breivik aber nicht in die Psychiatrie eingewiesen werden, sondern eine "möglichst milde Strafe" erhalten, sagte Anwalt Geir Lippestad in seinem Schlussplädoyer in Oslo. Lippestad musste formell einen Freispruch fordern, weil sein Mandant auf nicht schuldig plädiert hatte.

(usaf) Senior Defense Department officials will brief a Japanese delegation at the Pentagon on July 22 on recent incidents involving U.S. MV-22 and CV-22 Osprey aircraft variants, Pentagon Press Secretary George Little said today.

"This is a tangible demonstration of how seriously the Department of Defense takes the issue and inquiries made by the government of Japan on this matter," Little said.

U.S. designates Boko Haram leaders 'Global Terrorists'

(compassnewspaper) The United States (U.S.) State Department yesterday designated the commander of Nigeria-based militant group Boko Haram Abubakar Shekau as Specially Designated Global Terrorist.

Shekau is the most visible leader of the Nigeria-based militant group Jama'atu Ahlis Sunna Lidda'awati Wal-Jihad, commonly referred to as Boko Haram.

The U.S. also designated Khalid al-Barnawi and Abubakar Adam Kamar, who have ties to Boko Haram and have close links to al-Qa'ida in the Islamic Maghreb, a designated Foreign Terrorist Organization.

(defensenews) The United States and New Zealand signed an agreement to expand defense cooperation on June 19 but the deal does not alter Auckland's longstanding ban on port visits by nuclear-armed American warships, officials said.

The accord was the latest in a series marking U.S. attempts to shift its strategic focus to the Asia-Pacific, as Washington keeps a wary eye on China's rising power.

(shortnews) In der Nacht zum heutigen Samstag sind drei in der Ukraine verschwundene Aktivistinnen der Frauenrechtsgruppe Femen wieder aufgetaucht. Diese erheben nun Vorwürfe gegen den Geheimdienst der Ukraine. Die Frauen waren am helllichten Tag entführt und von Geheimdienstleuten der Ukraine verhört worden.

Bei den Verhören waren die Frauen neuen Stunden "unter moralischem Druck und ohne Kontakt zur Außenwelt" befragt worden. Einer Frau wurde ins Gesicht geschlagen.

Die Frauenrechtsorganisation ist international für durchgeführte Aktionen gegen Prostitution, Sextourismus und Wahlbetrug bekannt. Dabei zeigen die Frauen oft nackte Haut. Auch beim Eröffnungsspiel zur aktuellen Fußball-EM war die Gruppe aktiv.

As Iran Talks Falter, Fears of Military Action Increase

(VOA) LONDON - The near failure of talks in Moscow and the pending imposition of a full oil embargo by the European Union have deepened the dispute between Iran and the international community, and increased concerns about military action.

Two days of grueling talks did not narrow the gaps between the West and Iran. The negotiators could only agree to hold lower level talks in the coming weeks.

Mark Fitzpatrick at London's International Institute for Strategic Studies calls the Moscow meetings "a disappointment," and has little hope for the follow-on talks.

(rfe) There's been no official reaction yet to a "Washington Post" report saying the United States and Israel jointly developed a computer virus called "Flame" aimed at disrupting Iran's nuclear program.

The June 19 report, citing Western officials, said the development of the malware, discovered last month on computers used by the Iranian Oil Ministry, began five years ago.

The report said the U.S. National Security Agency and the Central Intelligence Agency worked with Israel's military on the project.

(irna) An informed source at Iran's nuclear negotiating team in Moscow session says the G5+1 has called for more time to answer Iran's requests in connection with the Baghdad proposed package.

The Iranian official said complicated nature of the talks and careful definition of Iran's stances by the nuclear negotiating team to the other party have been the main reason for the G5+1 request for more time.

He said the Iranian negotiating team had in the two-days of talks with the G5+1 delegation offered comprehensive proposals and detailed explanations on its stances to the other party, prompting the G5+1 to ask for more time to contemplate on the proposals.

Nuclear Talks Begin, Iran Wants Sanctions Lifted

(VOA) MOSCOW - With Iran facing new oil export sanctions in less than two weeks, talks over Tehran's nuclear program opened on Monday in Moscow with a new spirit of urgency.

Iran immediately asked Western nations to ease sanctions as a precondition to stopping its nuclear enrichment project. The demand was made to representatives of the five permanent member nations of the United Nations Security Council, plus Germany. They met with Iranian negotiators in the third effort in three months to try to persuade Tehran to drop plans to enrich uranium to 20 percent.

President: IR Iran ready for Moscow talks

(irna) President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad said that the Islamic Republic of Iran is prepared to negotiate with the Group 5+1 in an upcoming meeting slated for June 18-19 in Moscow about 20-percent uranium enrichment.

President Ahmadinejad made the remarks in an exclusive interview with the German newspaper Frankfurter Allgemeine in Tehran on Sunday.

"Building confidence is a mutual issue and we should see what does the other side of the negotiating table does and if they take a positive step, we are all ready to cooperate and we hope to take concrete steps in Moscow," the president added.

„USA plante Cyberattacke gegen unsere Atomanlage“

(focus) Offiziell haben die USA nicht zugegeben, Stuxnet entwickelt zu haben. Dennoch wird der Virus den USA und seinen Verbündeten zugeschrieben. Der Iran behauptet nun, der Westen habe weitere Angriffe geplant.

„Auf Basis der vorliegenden Informationen planten Amerika und das zionistische Regime (Israel) zusammen mit dem MI6 (dem britischen Geheimdienst) eine massive Cyberattacke gegen die iranischen Anlagen“ sagte Geheimdienstminister Heidar Moslehi dem Staatsfernsehen am Donnerstag. Der Angriff sei nach dem jüngsten Treffen über das iranische Atomprogramm in Moskau geplant gewesen und die drei Länder verfolgten ihr Vorhaben noch immer. Der Iran habe aber Abwehrmaßnahmen ergriffen. Die internationalen Verhandlungen in Moskau über das umstrittene iranische Atomprogramm hatten am Dienstag keinen Durchbruch gebracht.

Tensions Soar In Egypt As Election Result Delayed

(rfe) The decision by Egyptian election officials to delay declaring a winner in the country's presidential ballot has sent tensions in the country soaring.

With both candidates -- Muhammad Morsi of the Muslim Brotherhood and former General Ahmed Shafiq -- claiming victory, analysts say the postponement risks undermining public trust in the process.

The situation could become explosive, says Shashank Joshi, a regional analyst with London-based Chatham House.

New reports also claim that government troops shelled a group of mourners in the southern flashpoint city of Dara'a, killing a large number of people.

Rabab al-Rifai, a spokeswoman for the ICRC, said the team remains in another part of Homs and will continue to attempt to enter the badly hit neighborhood of Hamidiya.

UN Observers Committed To Syria

(rfe) The head of the UN observer mission in Syria says UN forces there have come under fire recently but are committed to staying in the country.

Maj. Gen. Robert Mood said questions about cancelling the mission were premature and noted, "We are not going anywhere."

"Violence including shelling, small arms fire and other incidents are coming much closer and we have been targeted several times over the last few weeks. This violence to the UNMOs [United Nations military observers] in itself but also because it made it very difficult to execute the mandated activities of my mission led me to the decision a few days ago to halt the activities of UNSMIS. I made that decision based on the risks on the ground and based on the fact that the risks made it extremely difficult to implement mandated tasks," Mood told reporters after giving the UN Security Council a closed-door update on the situation in Syria.

(VOA) U.N. diplomats say Syria's increasing violence is forcing them to consider an early end to the country's U.N. observer mission, which suspended patrols on Saturday to keep its unarmed staff out of danger. Officials and experts say the 47 nations making up the mission also have different positions on who decides when the troops will leave Syria and whether a pullout is justified.

The almost 300 U.N. military observers in Syria have a mandate that lasts until July 20, but escalating battles between government and rebel forces mean the operation may end sooner.

(n-tv) Die Vereinigten Staaten setzen fast alles daran, Syriens Präsident Assad aus dem Amt zu heben. Darauf lassen zumindest Medienberichte schließen: Der US-Geheimdienst CIA verschafft Assad-Gegnern danach Waffen, während Washington dem Machthaber schon vorsorglich ein Exil in der Schweiz bereitet.

Er ist verantwortlich für den Tod von Tausenden Zivilisten und Oppositionellen. In seinem Kampf gegen Regimegegner greift Baschar al-Assad auf die ganze Durchschlagskraft seines Militärs zurück. So lauten die Vorwürfe gegen Syriens Präsidenten. Vor einem Verfahren vor einem internationalen Gerichtshof muss er sich trotzdem nicht fürchten. Zumindest wenn stimmt, was die britischen Tageszeitungen "Guardian" und "Daily Telegraph" berichten.

(tagesanzeiger) Seit Wochen wird die syrische Opposition aus der Südtürkei mit Waffen versorgt. Die Aktion wird laut Berichten vom US-Geheimdienst geleitet. Der CIA gehe es dabei nicht nur um die Unterstützung der Rebellen.

Der US-Geheimdienst hat offenbar im Syrien-Konflikt seine Hände im Spiel. Eine kleine Gruppe von CIA-Beamten sei seit mehreren Wochen im Süden der Türkei stationiert, von wo aus sie die syrische Opposition mit Waffen versorge. Dies berichtet die «New York Times» und beruft sich dabei auf einen Mitarbeiter der US-Regierung und einen saudiarabischen Geheimdienstoffizier, welcher mit der klandestinen Operation vertraut ist.

(rfe) Alexis Tsipras, leader of the antibailout Syriza party, has conceded defeat in the June 17 parliamentary elections in Greece.

Initial results give the conservative New Democracy party 29.5 percent of the vote, following by Syriza with 27.1 percent, and the Pasok Socialist party with 12.3 percent.

New Democracy party head Antonis Samaras said the vote shows that Greeks want to remain in the eurozone.

(derstandard) Die polnische Regierung wollte mit den USA offenbar zunächst einen Vertrag abschließen, bevor mutmaßliche geheime CIA-Gefängnisse für Terrorismus-Verdächtige in Polen eingerichtet werden sollten, berichtete am Dienstag die polnische Tageszeitung "Gazeta Wyborcza". Die Staatsanwaltschaft, die in der Sache ermittelt, verfüge über einen Vertragsentwurf, der die Details der Zusammenarbeit der polnischen und der US-amerikanischen Geheimdienste regeln sollte. Die Unterschrift eines US-Vertreters fehle jedoch. Die USA hätten Polen ausgelacht, weil sie keine Spuren hinterlassen wollten, so ein Informant gegenüber der Zeitung.

UK to Allocate $1.5 Bln to Build Reactors for New Submarines

(rian) The UK will allocate 1 billion pounds ($1.5 billion) for building two reactors for next-generation nuclear-powered submarines, the BBC reported on Sunday.

The contract, expected to be announced by Defense Secretary Philip Hammond, is part of plans to replace the Vanguard fleet, which carries the Trident nuclear deterrent.

The work will be carried out at the Rolls-Royce factory at Raynesway, Derby, and will create 300 jobs.

(bbc) The Home Office says it has no current plans to force the Royal Mail to store data on all letters and postcards passing through its system.

The provision is included in the government's draft communications data bill, published this week.

But the Home Office said the bill would just maintain existing powers relating to postal data.

And it stressed that only data about mail - not its contents - would be retained if the law was ever enacted.

Analysis: Intervention options in northern Mali

(irin) The African Union (AU) and ECOWAS (Economic Community of West African States) have been taking a dual-track approach in Mali in recent weeks - diplomatic negotiations with the rebels and Islamist groups who have taken over the north, while calling on the UN Security Council to draft a resolution and approve a military mission. Analysts question whether either option is likely to work, and if so, which?

"Using force is not the first option. The first option remains to get results through negotiations with the ones with legitimate demands," ECOWAS Commission President Kadré Désiré Ouédrogo said last week.

Frustration Mounts in Nigeria After 3 Days of Deadly Violence

(VOA) DAKAR - Frustration over Nigeria's handling of a security crisis is mounting after three days of violence killed at least 80 people in the country's north.

Three days of deadly violence in northern Nigeria have intensified criticism of the government's handling of militant Islamic sect Boko Haram, whose attacks have killed hundreds this year, despite a heavy security deployment.

Als die CIA Bürger zu Versuchskaninchen machte

(diepresse) Das Projekt MKULTRA gehört zu den dunkelsten Kapiteln in der Geschichte der Geheimdienste. In den 1950ern und -60ern benutzte die CIA die Bevölkerung für Experimente zur "Gedankenkontrolle".

Ein Geheimdienst, der Bürger des eigenen Landes zu menschlichen Versuchskaninchen für Drogen, Elektroschocks und Hypnose macht. Was nach kruder Verschwörungstheorie oder Hollywood-Thriller klingt, war in den USA vor fünfzig Jahren Realität.

MKULTRA hieß das Projekt, mit dem die CIA herausfinden wollte, wie man die Gedanken von Menschen kontrollieren kann. CIA-Direktor Allen Dulles segnete das geheime Projekt im April 1953 ab. Schon zuvor hatte es Versuche mit gefangenen gegnerischen Soldaten und Spionen gegeben - nun wurden die Experimente im größeren Stil aufgezogen.

Kiriakou Calls Leak Prosecution Selective, Vindictive

(fas) Former CIA officer John Kiriakou, who is charged with unauthorized disclosure of a covert officer's identity and other classified information, says that the case against him is driven by government animosity, and that he is a target of selective prosecution.

"When White House aides leaked stories about the heroes who killed Osama Bin Laden, they were not prosecuted. When the Washington Post was granted access to the covert director of the CTC for a profile of those directing America's 'war on terror,' no one was prosecuted," his attorneys wrote in a newly disclosed motion for dismissal. State Secrets Protection Act Introduced in House

(fas) A bill "to provide safe, fair, and responsible procedures and standards for resolving claims of state secrets privilege" was introduced in the House of Representatives this week by Rep. Jerrold Nadler and several Democratic colleagues. (b)

Essentially, the bill (HR 5956) would require courts to render an independent assessment of the validity of a government assertion of the state secrets privilege, rather than simply deferring to the claim. When the privilege is properly asserted, courts would be required to consider the feasibility of introducing non-privileged substitutes for privileged evidence.

DNI Directive Seeks to Tighten Protection of Intelligence

(fas) Director of National Intelligence James R. Clapper issued a directive earlier this month to improve the protection of intelligence information and to help prevent unauthorized disclosures.

The newly revised Intelligence Community Directive 700 (b) requires a new degree of collaboration between counterintelligence and security activities. While counterintelligence (CI) was scarcely mentioned in the previous version of the policy on protecting intelligence in 2007, (c) it is now being elevated to a central role and integrated with security.

Henri Bohnet: Vergangenheitsaufarbeitung in Serbien

(kas) In den meisten Staaten Osteuropas hat sich vor dem Hintergrund ihrer demokratischen Transformation in den letzten 20 Jahren die Frage der Vergangenheitsbewältigung gestellt. Jeder Staat musste eine individuelle Antwort auf diese Aufgabe finden, die den Besonderheiten der eigenen Geschichte Rechnung trägt. In Serbien hat eine wirkliche Aufarbeitung der Vergangenheit bis heute kaum begonnen. Denn trotz der friedlichen Revolution von 2000, die mit dem Sturz Milosevics endete, überdauern in der heutigen serbischen Politik sowohl Strukturen als auch Personen aus seinem Umfeld.

Security Leaders Briefed on New U.S. Africa Strategy

(africom) The Africa Center for Strategic Studies (ACSS) opened its annual Senior Leaders Seminar on June 18, 2012, in Arlington, Virginia, during which keynote speaker Amanda J. Dory, the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Africa Policy, for the first time in public discussed the White House's newly updated U.S. policy for sub-Saharan Africa.

One of the Africa Center's flagship programs, the two-week Senior Leaders Seminar is intended to provide a forum for approximately 70 senior-level military officers, civilian security experts, and other government officials from 40 African countries, the United States, and Europe, as well as representatives from international and regional organizations, to review and analyze the evolving African security environment and to discuss strategies for addressing challenges and enhancing Africa's security. The seminar was being conducted in a hotel in Arlington, Virginia, a few blocks from the Pentagon and downtown Washington, D.C.

Hörspielnächte in der Trinitatiskirche

(dnn-online) Auf eine "Zeitreise" geht, wer die sechste Ausgabe der Dresdner Hörspielnächte vom 25. Juni bis 1. Juli in der Ruine der Trinitatiskirche an der Haydnstraße 23 besucht. Die präsentierten Hörspiele im "Kino für die Ohren" drehen sich um vergangene historische Ereignisse. So zum Beispiel um den Mann, der nach Indien segeln wollte und sich in Amerika wiederfand, oder einen Spion des britischen Geheimdienstes, der die Ermordung Fidel Castros durch die Amerikaner verhindern soll. Auch einige Absteher in die Zukunft werden unternommen. Die beiden bekanntesten Sci Fi-Schriftsteller der DDR, Erik Simon und Reinhard Heinrich lesen am Freitag (29. Juni) aus ihrer Zeitreisen-Oper. Im Kellergewölbe der Kirche lädt eine Zeitmaschine dazu ein, Animationsfilme zu sehen.

Wem das nicht genug ist der kann sich an verschiedenen Hörstationen individuell beschallen lassen. Der Eintritt ist an allen Tagen frei.
